Academy of Music.—The benefit of Mr. Nagle on Saturday evening was in every respect a success—the house being well-filled and the performance all that could have been denired. The part of "Jack Cade," though at times calling for more force than Mr. Nagle could give it, was yet most acceptably rendered, and was indeed a new triumph for this accomplished actor, fully satisfying his auditors, as was frequently evidenced in their hearty applause. At the conclusion of the play Mr. Nagle was called before the curtain and acknowledged in very neat terms the favor shown him. When about to return behind the curtain, he was confronted by Mr. Al. Thayer, who addressed to him a few remarks of compliment, and in behalf of a number of friends presented him with a very handsome diamond pin.
